Hypothetical case:

First, I would document the crash in detail in the tool used by the team. I would inform the test leader with details about the crash and the response I received from the developers. Would also ask for instruction on how to proceed with this situation.

At a future bug meeting, I would comment on the bug, describe how it happened, and give my opinion on the bug's priority level to analyze the need to fix it based on the progress of the project.
